COURT GRANTS STRIKE INJUNCTION

GREAT BRITAIN TO REINFORCE TROOPS AT CONSTANTINOPLE

MALTA, Sept. 23.—Further military detachments for the reinforcement of the British forces in the Dardanelles are expected to leave soon for Constantinople.

Units of the second destroyer flotilla, detached from the Atlantic fleet to reinforce the squadron now in the straits, have begun to come in.

PARIS REPORTS PROSPECTS FOR PEACE ARE BRIGHTER

LONDON, Sept 23.—Notwithstanding assurances from Paris that the prospects for peace in the near east are brightening, ugly reports continue to come from Constantinople, and several more units of the Atlantic fleet, including the battleship Revenge, have been ordered to prepare for service in the Dardanelles.

The favorable side of the picture is presented by the Paris correspondent of the Times, who reports that the French naval commander Admiral Dumesnil, sent his government a most reassuring dispatch concerning his interview with Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

The Times thinks this should neutralize the apprehension over yesterday's reports that Mustapha Kemal had given the allies a 48 hour ultimatum. The newspaper believes that fear of a conflict is receding.

The Morning Post also is hopeful. It asserts that the allies have good ground to believe that Mustapha Kemal does not intend to attack any allied troops.

According to the Post's naval expert there is little reason to fear the Turks will be able to make the straits untenable for the fleet by their heavy guns.

The writer contends that the position is radically different from that which existed when the allies' attempt to force the straits in the world war was frustrated by the Turks and Germans. He points out that the defenders had heavy guns securely emplaced, besides numerous mine fields.

Among the latest dispatches from the near east, many of which are more or less alarming, is a report to the Times that large forces of Kemalist cavalry have reached Adramyti from Smyrna, moving toward the neutral zone. (Adramyti is 50 miles southeast of Chanak near the Gulf of Adramyti)

British land and sea reinforcements are rapidly arriving, the dispatch adds, and the hot, dry weather greatly facilitates the movement of guns ashore.

WILL REACH A DECISION WITHIN THIRTY-SIX HOURS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept 23.—Within 36 hours the world will probably know whether the Turkish nationalists have chosen war or peace. The Angora cabinet, meeting at Smyrna, is expected hourly to declare whether the Kemalists will await the peace conference proposed by the powers or invade Thrace.

France is expected to exert renewed pressure to keep the Turks from any hostile action but many competent observers are frankly skeptical.

The Turks are fully aware of the weakness of the British land forces now precariously holding points along the Asia Minor shore and are convinced of their ability to defeat them.

French official circles hold that the only thing which can stave off the nationalist attack is a definite pledge by Great Britain to support France in guaranteeing that Thrace will be restored to Turkey.

It is reported that Mustapha Kemal Pasha the nationalist leader, is opposed to hasty action, but it remains to be seen whether his strong personality and convictions can triumph over his colleagues.

Unfeigned anxiety exists among the British here over the continued strong concentration of Turkish troops at Ismid, where by reason of the withdrawal of the Italians, the position of the British forces has been sensibly weakened.

The nationalists have brought up field guns from Ex-Inc which they recently seized to within ten miles from the southern shore of the Dardanelles.

PROSPECTS FOR PEACE IN NEAR EAST BRIGHTER

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept 23.—The prospects for peace in the near east were distinctly brighter today as the French and British cabinets met to consider the tentative conditions of settlement drawn up by the allied representatives here. These conditions are expected to form the basis of negotiations at the peace conference soon to be summoned.

They provide for the re-occupation of Constantinople and eastern Thrace, including Adrianople up to the line of the river Maritza, with a neutral zone along the Thracian Bulgarian and Grecian frontiers, internationalization of the Dardanelles, maintenance of a permanent allied military force at Gallipoli and strict guarantees for the protection of the minorities in Turkey.

Should the plan be approved by the two cabinets today and be accepted by the Turkish nationalist government as a basis for negotiation it is thought the peace conference could be convoked for October 10 or 12.

Although Venice has been tentatively fixed upon as the place for the conference, the conferees are willing if the Turks insist that it be some city in Asia Minor.

SPIRIT OF A. E. F. NEVER EXCELLED IN WORLD'S HISTORY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—In an address at the state convention of the American legion here yesterday General John Pershing declared:

"The spirit that animated the A. E. F. was never excelled in any army in the history of the world.

"It is gratifying to know that the men of the legion today are imbued with the same spirit that imbued them when they were ordered to storm the German trenches. The American legion knows by experience the need of a national program of preparedness. I wish to thank you for what you have done for the cause of preparedness so we shall not be caught again in such a lamentable state of unpreparedness as when we entered the war."

Stamford Defeats Seymour Before Large Gathering

Special to The Times.

SEYMOUR, TEXAS, Sept 23.—An immense crowd witnessed the spectacular football game at the Baylor county fair yesterday between the Stamford and Seymour high school teams. Stamford won by a score of 19 to 0 the same score that Stamford defeated Haskell last Saturday. The game was a fast and well played performance, which elicited prolonged and loud cheers from hundreds of Seymour rooters. The Stamford team was outweighed but this handicap was overcome by the superior speed of the visitors, coupled with their ability to make long end runs almost at will.

Seymour relied largely upon forward passes, making several sensational gains by this method. Brooks and Morris, for Seymour, made especially splendid plays in the numerous stages of the game. The lineup follows: Stamford—ends, Gay, Dyer, tackles, Lyon, Bounds, guards, Lee Sanders; center, E. Pierson; half backs, Lovorn, Owens, full back, Burnham, quarterback, Fields. Seymour—ends, G. Hancock, Brooks, guards, Harrison, Harvey, center, Bellows; half backs Stallings, Morris; full back, Siddens, quarterback, Lowery.

Mayfield as senator from Texas and urges all democrats as well as others interested in the national welfare to vote for Mayfield and all other democratic candidates including Harry Hertzberg, the democratic nominee for congress in the 14th district against Harry Wurzbach, republican incumbent.

At no place in his statement does Senator Sheppard refer to the K. K. Klux Klan but warns against apathy on the part of the democrats in the November election.

CLOUDS KEEP SUN FROM PLAYING ON TEMPERATURE BULB

An overcast sky that assumed general proportions shortly after the noon hour Friday kept the sun from playing on the sensitive mercury bulb and locally as a result the mercury only reached the 88 degree mark for the maximum.

During the night it only receded to the 67 degree point which was five degrees higher than the minimum for the preceding night.

Clear skies were reported from all towns along local railroad lines Saturday morning and all agents reported extreme calmness with not a breath of air movement at long intervals.

Reports from all directions Saturday morning indicated that a pleasant Sunday could be anticipated.

TEXHOMA WELL IN ARCHER EXTENDS POOL THREE MILES

The Texhoma Refining company's No. 2 test on the Tad Wilson ranch in Archer county is flowing and swabbing at the rate of 100 barrels from the 1600 foot sand.

PASS UP THE QUESTION OF REVISING ARTICLE X OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Sept 23.—The question of revising article 10 of the league of nations covenant or eliminating it altogether was passed on to the fourth assembly by the present assembly today without further observation or recommendation than the subject be considered in all its bearings.

The Canadian delegation showed no disposition to wish Charles J. Daugherty's amendment eliminating the article.

M. Barthelemy of France said article 10 ought not to be changed in the hope of bringing the United States into the league. There was no assurance that a change would have this effect he declared and in any case the article ought not to be changed until the United States was on the scene to deliberate upon it with the rest of the world.

OKLAHOMA MAN SUES FOR SECTION OIL LAND IN WILBARGER COUNTY

VERNON, TEXAS, Sept 23.—Suit for the title to section 223, block 24 of the H. & T. C. railroad survey in Ward county, Texas is being made in the district court of Wilbarger county by Robert L. Kric, former state senator of Oklahoma and now a resident of Cordell in that state. The section in dispute is said to be oil land. The case is of peculiar interest as it involves the foreclosure of four vendor Lien notes amounting to $3,200 and executed in 1913. The last note coming due in 1916 with out an extension agreement was barred under Texas statutes be barred in 1919. The contention of the plaintiff is that the party who assumed the payment of the notes has been absent from the state since 1916 and that the statute of limitation did not run during his absence.

THEATER ACCIDENT BEING INVESTIGATED LITTLE GIRL KILLED

PITTSBURGH, Sept 23.—City officials conducting an investigation of the collapse of the foyer of the Strand theatre yesterday afternoon began this forenoon to take statements of some of the 58 children, most of whom were injured when the concrete floor dropped to the basement.

Madelin Knuble aged 8 one of those invited to the free showing of the picture "The Trap" was killed and 18 of the injured are in hospitals. Only four are in a serious condition. Seven suffered broken arms and legs.

Free tickets had been issued to school children for yesterday's show. Scores of them gaily attired clustered about the corridor awaiting admission. Then came the crash and the joyous throng was dropped 15 feet into the cellar and covered with blocks of rock and concrete. Their bodies were ripped and torn.

A city building inspector viewed the ruins and reported the flooring had been improperly constructed. Sol Seltzer, the proprietor who was seriously injured in the crash said the building was inspected two months ago and pronounced sound.

FRIDAY FLIGHT FROM EL PASO TO NOGALES HARD PART OF TRIP

NOGALES, ARIZ. Sept 23.—Friday's flight from El Paso to Nogales was the hardest part of our trip thus far, said Commander H. A. Strauss of the army dirigible [illegible] following the airship's arrival here yesterday. The difficulty we experienced was because the ship was not designed to operate at such an altitude while carrying such a heavy load of fuel.

"The fact the commander of the big army blimp continued that we were able to make the flight successfully at all goes a long way toward proving the practicability of the giant balloons for commercial service."

Delegation From Wichita Falls Cuts Up Considerably For Crowd's Amusement.

Staff Special to The Times

VERNON, TEXAS, Sept 23.—Of the 2000 attendants at the Wilbarger county fair Wichita day, September 22, the local count at the gate estimated the attendance from the "city that faith built" at 150. The delegation from Wichita Falls arrived in Vernon at 11:00 o'clock Friday and spent the remainder of the morning in the business district, the business houses were closed in the afternoon and it was necessary to advertise the T-O fair in town in the morning. With R. E. Shepherd acting as cheer leader and general noisemaker about 20 dustered and feathered Wichitans paraded the streets of Vernon and marched boldly into the various business houses and amused the clerks and invited them to "our" fair. For a few minutes people began to pull down their shutters and some even intimated a raid on the local banks, but they were quickly informed that the affair would be nothing more than a daylight serenade and the townspeople entered splendidly into the celebration.

At 2:00 o'clock the entire party made their way to the grounds of the Wilbarger county fair. The attractions at the fair this year include daily horse races and rodeo, a first class midway with all the usual attractions, extensive array of articles on display at the exhibition halls, including exhibits from the various clubs, individuals and business houses in the county. An excellent showing of pure bred dogs, registered swine, cattle, chickens and other stock all occupy an important place in the exhibits.

From the reports heard around the livestock exhibit hall, this county will be at the T-O fair strong. J. L. Hunter, county agent of Childress county, acted as judge in the livestock department and assured the prize winners that the stock exhibited here would measure up against the stiffest competition. The prize winners from Vernon fair who are prospective attendants at the T-O fair with their livestock are.

J. C. Guyer, Aey Boar and C. L. Moore, winners in the Poland China hogs. Miss Lorell Dobbins, Bourland and Sharpe, and Logan Creager are also contemplating entering Poland China stock.

Glenn Parmley, Thomas Chapman, Oscar Hale and S. J. Paschal, Duroc Jerseys.

M. C. Neal, Miss Laura Lee Hall, C. H. Reynolds and John Hawley, Shorthorn and Holstein cattle.

Young Wheeler, J. T. Oates and J. H. Paschal, Jersey cattle.

James O'Neal, Percheron stallions and jacks.

The textile department, under the direction of Mrs. O. A. Brunson and the fine arts exhibit presided over by Mrs. R. H. Coffee are said to be the best ever brought to anybody's county fair. Vernon high school made its initial appearance at the fair this year with some splendid work from the domestic arts and manual training departments. The display of products raised on the J. C. Frost farm in Farmers Valley has attracted considerable attention.

After looking at the 28 different products grown on this farm people are often heard to inquire "Is there anything that Wilbarger county cannot raise?" Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Campbell of Oklaunion are here with their complete collection of carved ivory woodwork and native relics gathered by them while stationed in the Congo region of Africa. Aside from these local merchants are well represented on the fair grounds with booths advertising their products.

The love of a good horse race caused the trippers to overlook that interesting and instructive things in the exhibits. Approximately 1500 persons witnessed the races here Friday. Four races with the best blooded racing stock that this territory affords were enjoyed.

By repeated requests and continued applause the Wichitans furnished the music for the occasion. "If you can dance they want you to sing", just because they could furnish music the judges stand called for volunteers from the Wichita crowd to ride the trick mule after the races.

Sellars Rogers could not see the trippers outdone so immediately following the races he led the procession into the city, mounted on the trick mule. Another parade and general jollification was held when the party arrived in the business district. Members of the party enjoyed a dance at the Vernon Country club Friday night.

The trippers left Vernon early Saturday morning to go to Seymour for the Baylor county fair.

HOLDS STRIKERS RESPONSIBLE FOR RECENT ACTS OF VIOLENCE INJUNCTION MADE NATIONWIDE

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Judge James H. Wilkerson today granted Attorney General Daugherty's petition for a nationwide temporary injunction against the striking railway shopmen.

Judge Wilkerson in a lengthy review of the case said the defendants could not deny knowledge and responsibility for the widespread violence which has marked the strike. Partial settlement of the strike, he held, has not affected the right of the government to obtain a nation-wide injunction.

The court gave attorneys for the defense until Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock to study the decision and prepare to argue the text of the injunction order which will be signed.

Attorney General Daugherty on Thursday presented the government's proposed draft, which is even more drastic than the restraining order now in force.

The order will affect 250 officers and 400,000 members of the six crafts belonging to the railway employes department American Federation of Labor.

The government has not decided to follow up the present hearing with a request for a permanent injunction, it was said today. It is considered probable that the strikers will appeal Judge Wilkerson's decision and carry the case to the supreme court because of its importance.

The temporary injunction to be issued Monday will supersede the temporary restraining order issued September 1.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The railroad world today had its spotlight turned on to the federal building in Chicago, where Judge James H. Wilkerson of the United States district court promised to announce his ruling on the government's strike injunction sought by Attorney General Daugherty, at 11 a. m. today. The ruling was considered by attorneys as the most important of its kind ever handed down by a judge of a United States court.

The Chesapeake and Ohio had joined the list of roads which effected settlements with striking shopmen. The New York, New Haven and Hartford signed a new agreement with its conductors and trainmen. The agreement, which covers wages and working conditions until September, 1923, contained a provision to withdraw all petitions pending before the United States railroad labor board.

The Denver and Rio Grande took a definite stand with roads refusing the Baltimore settlement plan, announcing that strikers would be accepted only as new employes and as individuals and that negotiations would be made only with newly formed shop organizations.

On the Southern railway and the Seaboard Air line both of which signed the Baltimore terms the return of strikers to the shops was made amid an air of hostility between returning strikers and other workmen. To avoid clashes entirely while strikers were placed on different shifts from those who manned the shops during the strike officials of the Southern were conducting an inquiry to ascertain the persons responsible for a clash in the shops at Colburn, Ky.

Under orders from Brigadier General Carlos Black, adjutant general of Illinois, the last company of state troops on strike duty in Illinois prepared to leave the Chicago and Alton shops at Bloomington.

Numerous roads announced restoration of trains annulled during the coal and rail strikes. Among the last roads to announce regular or nearly normal service were the Missouri Pacific, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the Pere Marquette. The last named road announced that full service would begin tomorrow.

ARREST THREE IN CONNECTION WITH THEFT OF BONDS

MEMPHIS, TENN. Sept. 3.—W. T. Griffin, inspector of detectives here has telegraphed New York police to obtain and question four men there in connection with the arrest here of N. T. Arvidson and W. J. Pierce of New York and Frank H. Prindle Caryville and Brooklyn, N. Y. who are held on federal charges of having in their possession stolen government bonds and of conspiracy to dispose of stolen United States securities.

The police have asked a banker of Monroe, La. to come to this city to tell what he may know of the activities in bond transactions of the trio under arrest here.

Inspection of the possessions of Arvidson according to the police disclosed that he carried letters of identification to Governor William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania and Joseph F. Guffey Pittsburgh, Pa.

These letters were on stationery of the "Transportation Club," New York, under date of November 11, 1919. In the reputed letters to Governor Sproul Arvidson was referred to as the president of the United Oil and Drilling company of Texas.

TARIFF THE 1922 ISSUE ACCORDING TO GOVERNOR COX

By Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept 23.—Asked what the issue will be in 1922, former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, democratic nominee for president in 1920, declared here today in his first address since his return from an extensive tour of Europe made before the City club, that "the people this year will be asked to elect a congress that will undo the present tariff monstrosity."

"But we will not lose sight of another great question—the international one," Mr. Cox added. "It will be more pertinent for discussion however, in the great national forum of 1924."

"When a surgeon finds an injured man suffering from a severed artery and a broken leg, he sews the artery first. In the present instance, and as the international wound is, the domestic injury inflicted by the most incompetent congress in all history is even worse," he said.

Another Ford was stolen Friday, and officers were searching for it Saturday. It belonged to F. T. Kingery.

WICHITANS JOIN BIG CROWD AT SEYMOUR FOR FAIR'S FINALE

Staff Special to The Times

SEYMOUR, TEXAS, Sept 23.—Members of the trade trip party from Wichita Falls constituted a negligible part of the crowd of Wichitans here today for the Baylor county fair. When the trippers reached here at 11 a. m. after a two-hour run from Vernon they found scores of home folks on hand who had motored down Saturday morning and it was estimated that 400 to 500 from Wichita Falls were on hand at noon with more enroute.

Officials of the fair and the Seymour chamber of commerce greeted the Wichitans on their arrival here. The trippers planned to visit the fair in the afternoon, and to take in the rodeo, balloon ascension, airplane flights and other attractions which are contributing to the success of Baylor county's annual blow out. There are 53 entries in the rodeo events riders roping and bull doggers from a dozen western states being here to complete for the prizes offered.

Seymour is gaily decorated for the fair and big crowds are attending. The Wichita Falls trippers expect to leave for home at 6 p. m. tonight and to arrive between 8 and 9 o'clock.

MANY SEYMOUR EXHIBITS ARE TO BE IN T-O FAIR

By HAMILTON WRIGHT

SEYMOUR, TEXAS, Sept [illegible] Near now today [illegible] streets were beginning to [illegible] with country folks here to participate in the elaborate Baylor county fair program of the last day. The large crowds from Wichita Falls had not arrived at 11:00 o'clock, but was momentarily expected. Their advent was expected to inject merriment and interest in the morning program.

During the forenoon the crowds crammed and jammed the grounds inspecting exhibits in the livestock and agricultural divisions and witnessing the spectacular and thrilling rodeo features in the arena. The carnival devices were operating full swing to full capacity patronage.

The fair spirit is everywhere revealed. Numerous persons with whom The Times correspondent spoke declare intention of visiting the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Wichita Falls can expect whole hearted attendance from all the counties in central west Texas, according to the views of prominent business and professional men representing many counties with whom the correspondent talked.

While the Baylor county fair association delved deeply into its purse this year finds what has been considered the most successful and complete rodeo and fair event ever staged in the west. It expects two days crowds by nightfall will be sufficient to care for all the expenditures that have been made. This is without a parallel among county fairs in west Texas. Some regional fair institutions have shown decided losses for periods of two or three years before manifesting financial success. Baylor county is already designing a much more extensive and varied fair and rodeo next year according to officials.

What is expected to be a big feature today is a street dance in the business section tonight. Two [illegible] payment will be opened off. Many from the irrigation project near Munday are expected.

PANTHERS SUSTAIN FIRST BEATING IN SERIES; HENRY TO OPPOSE WACHTEL AGAIN

MOBILE, ALA., Sept. 23.—The fourth game of the series for the Dixie championship will be played by the Mobile Bears, champions of the Southern association, and the Fort Worth Panthers, pennant winners of the Texas league, this afternoon. The series now stands two to one in favor of the Texans.

While no definite announcement has been made by either Manager Bert Niehoff of the Bears or Manager Jackey Atz of the Panthers, it is almost certain that Dutch Henry, ace of the Bears, and Paul Wachtel spitballist of the Panthers, will be the opposing twirlers.

Back in their own lair, with backs to the wall and fangs bared, the Bears struck down the Panthers yesterday in one of the greatest baseball games ever staged on a Mobile field. After two successive defeats, the Bears fought a battle typical of their name and emerged triumphantly, 3 to 2. The victory was due to the masterful pitching of "Lefty" Fuhr and the timely hitting of Emil Huhn and Rhino Williams. The former poled a home run in the fourth inning with Rhino on base, and the latter singled in the eighth inning after Manager Niehoff had singled and had been sacrificed to second.

The Texans scored their runs in the eighth inning. Calvo singled and scored when Kraft, the "Babe Ruth" of the minors, crashed a home run over the right field fence.

In an attempt to stem the tide, Manager Atz of the Panthers used 18 players, the entire number eligible for the series, four pitchers taking part in the struggle.

On account of the shortness of the days, today's and Sunday's games will be called at 3:00 p. m.

Friday's score.

ALL-STARS HOPE TO DENT RECORD MADE BURK MAGNOLIAS

Several semi-pro baseball teams in Wichita county and surrounding territory have attempted to take the measure of the fast Magnolia team of Burkburnett this season, but their efforts have not been crowned with success. The latest aggregation which will attempt to subdue the Burk boys is a group of Wichita Falls "all-stars," managed by Neely Vaught, esterwhile Maskat Temple player. Vaught will pilot a club to Burk Sunday which he asserts is one of the four teams which will be able to win from the Mags. The Burk team has played over 30 games this season and has taken the short end of the score only three times.

"Lefty" McAbee will draw the assignment to stop the Mags with "Snipe" Connally held in reserve. Covington, former Baylor university backstop, will be on the receiving end.

The home team will present practically the same lineup which has been in effect all season. Bill Morgan, the flinger who made an admirable showing with the Fort Worth Panthers last spring, will be on the firing line and his shoots will be taken care of by Anderson. Pullen, the regular Mag backstop, is out with a broken thumb sustained last Sunday.

IF YANKEES REPEAT HOW WILL RUTH ACT IN ANNUAL CLASSIC

By BILLY EVANS

If the New York Yankees are fortunate enough to take part again in the world series, what part will Babe Ruth play?

While Ruth led the Yankees in hitting, with an average of .313, in the clash with the Giants his showing at the bat was a disappointment.

Never has a player gone into a world series carrying such a burden on his shoulders at Ruth in the 1921 clash between the Giants and the Yankees. He had just finished one of the most sensational years ever enjoyed by a major league player. He had broken all slugging records by making 59 home runs, thus eclipsing by five his best previous record.

Record 204 Hits

Nor had he confined his 1921 hitting to home runs. Aside from his 59 homers he cracked out 44 two-base hits and 16 triples. His record for the season was 204 hits for an average of .378, giving him third place in the American league batting averages, just below Heilmann and Cobb.

The baseball experts who predicted victory for the Yankees based much of their dope on Ruth's swatting ability. The Babe was figured to be the big punch in the Yankee offense.

Ruth did make one home run in the 1921 series, but it was a wasted effort. It came in the ninth inning of the fourth game, with no one on and the Yankees beaten, 4 to 1.

Throughout the series, with the exception of the second game, in which Ruth drew three bases on balls, the pitchers on the Giants' staff worked on Ruth and made him hit. Ruth struck out eight times during the series.

Took Real Nerve

In the Babe's defense I want to say that nobody ever played the game in worse physical condition. A terribly infected arm made it impossible for him to take his natural swing and forced him to remain out of several games. Due to his failure to hit, the gossips had it that he quit under fire. In justice I must say that such comment was decidedly undeserved.

Babe Ruth certainly did not quit in the series last year. It took real nerve to play, considering the condition in which he entered the series. In poor shape physically, unable to do himself justice, he was constantly "razzed" for his failure to hit.

Ruth deserves credit rather than censure for his play in the series last year. The only criticism that might be offered is that he stayed in the game entirely too long after being physically unfit.

What about the Babe Ruth of 1922, should the Yankees again get into the series?

It is my opinion that the Babe Ruth of this year is not the serious menace at the bat that he was last season. Any number of reasons could be offered for such belief.

An eight week's layoff at the start of the season certainly didn't improve Ruth's hating eye or stride. In addition the Babe has suffered from various physical ailments that have not improved his work.

Then there is the state of mind. Ruth is worrying this year. Last season he was the personification of confidence.

Babe's eye doesn't seem as keen this year. He is missing the style of pitching he once murdered. Pitchers who once feared him are taking chances on his prowess.

In summing up the chances of the Yankees this year, should the New York Americans get into the series, Ruth will not get such a big play from the experts.

Such being the case, it would be just like the Babe to cross everyone up.

WORLD SERIES COMPARISONS PROBABLE CONTENDERS SHORT STOP—By Billy Evans

BANCROFT SCOTT GERBER

By BILLY EVANS

Bancroft, New York Giants—Bancroft is a great ball player. Full of stature, he effervesces enthusiasm. He is the keystone of the Giants' infield. He has brains and uses 'em.

Bancroft is a turn-around batter, shifting to the right side of the plate when a southpaw opposes the Giants. He seems to hit equally well from either position.

In the field Bancroft is a student. He analyzes his batters and plays for them, constantly shifting his position to meet conditions. He starts quickly on the ball, has a good arm, and gets the ball away quickly and from any position.

Scott, New York Americans—Scott rates as one of the greatest shortstops of all time. However he is a youngster no longer. He is now at the top of the game. He tells that he finds the Polo Grounds the most difficult diamond he has ever played. Is of the opinion that it has affected his play.

Scott never has been rated a great hitter but always a most dangerous one. He seems to get his base hits when they will do the most good. Covers much ground, has a good arm and throws well from any position. Bats right handed.

Gerber, St. Louis Browns—Gerber is a remarkable fielder. In this respect he need not blow either to Bancroft or Scott. Works easily and for that reason does not get the credit he deserves for many brilliant plays he makes. Bats right handed. Like Scott, he is not rated as a great hitter, but rather a dangerous one.

There is little to choose between Bancroft, Scott and Gerber. A draw decision would be very fair. Their fielding is on a par. Bancroft is probably the best hitter of the trio. All other things being equal, that should give Bancroft a slight edge.

LONGHORN COACH PRAISES SPIRIT OF HIS GREEN TEAM

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Sept. 23.—"The spirit of the men who are trying for places on the Longhorn eleven is the best I have ever seen," said head coach Berry White, in discussing prospects in preparation for the first game of the season October 14 with Texas University.

"There are no stars among the candidates for the team, and the majority of the men are woefully green and inexperienced so far as gridiron play is concerned. How ever, these men are willing to work and to learn—and they are learning. The coaches of the squad have been impressed by the willingness on the part of the candidates to work. Not once have we had to spur any man forward. Each man is on his toes all the time, and I feel that we are making encouraging progress.

"I do not care to predict as to my chances in maintaining the six test games on the schedule for the Longhorn eleven. So enthusiastic are the players and so anxious are they to improve, that I feel confident each of them will do his best to get the best out of himself."

Another indication of the fine spirit of the prospective members of the Longhorn eleven is in the fact that every member of the squad is eating at the Varsity training table. A number of the men on the squad live in Austin. But these men are willing to undergo the extra expense of eating at the regular training table in order to be with their fellows. Such a spirit augurs well for the best sort of team spirit and team confidence when the eleven goes into actual action, concluded the Varsity head coach.

LITTLE THINGS MAY DECIDE A WORLD SERIES

This is the fifth of seven articles written for The Wichita Daily Times by Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox. Collins has played in more world series games than any other major league player.

By EDDIE COLLINS
World's Greatest Second Baseman

HERE are little things, considered of minor importance at the time of their occurrence, and of which the public know nothing, that enter into the outcome of many a world series.

For instance, in 1910 the Athletics knew practically every ball the Cub pitchers were throwing in the first three games played. That's a pretty good "ace in the hole," you'll have to admit.

In 1913 there was a certain pitcher on the Giant team who unconsciously showed by his pitching motion what he was going to throw, and as a result he lost.

Last year the Yanks sought to have the green canvas which acts as a background for the hitters at the Polo grounds lowered during the series. After considerable argument McGraw complied. And the Yankee players now admit that it worked a greater hardship upon their hitting than they figured it would on that of the Giants.

In 1914, owing to a misunderstanding between Managers Mack and Stallings, the Braves missed the use of Shibe park for practice on the day before the first game. Stallings' players were led to believe that they had been denied the use of the field. As a result of this erroneous impression, more hard feeling existed between the two teams than in any series in which I have ever participated.

Had Tough Time

Josh Devore had a tough time of it fathoming the pitching of the Athletics in 1911, striking out four times in one game against Plank.

The next spring while en route to training camp, a number of Giants and Athletic players met in St. Louis. Jack Murray, Doyle and Devore were talking together. Barry and I joined them. We exchanged greetings, but Devore didn't speak.

"What's the matter?" asked Doyle, "don't you know Barry and Collins?"

"How should I know them," Devore answered quickly, "I never got as far as second base in that series last fall."

There probably are just as wise and smart pitchers as Chief Bender, but for craftiness I've never seen his equal.

I'll never forget one play he pulled on no less a person than Manager Frank Chance of the Cubs in the 1910 series. Two on base, two out in the fourth game, being played in old West Side park in Chicago.

Chief finally worked the count down to three balls and two strikes. Then before pitching the final ball, he stopped deliberately in the box, turned around toward his outfield and waved them back with both hands, as much as to say plainly, "I am going to give him a fast one, play deep."

Slipped One Over

Then he proceeded with his windup, and threw up the prettiest curve ball, which Chance, with his bat on his shoulder, watched float across the plate for the third strike.

It is an unusual occurrence nowadays to see an umpire hit by a batted ball. But this happened in the 1911 world series, and if I remember correctly, sent the game into extra innings.

Harry Davis hit a line drive off Mathewson back through the box. It struck Tommy Connolly squarely in the back—hurt him, too. The Athletics had a man on first at the time and it looked like a cinch for him to have gone to third on the hit. But of course he was not permitted to do so.

A long fly followed and a run was thrown away.

The Athletics eventually won the game, so the incident was soon forgotten. But I can't help thinking how vivid it would have appeared if we had lost.

There are hundreds of "buts" and "ifs" in every ball game, but it takes only a victory to blot them out.

Tomorrow—What the Loss of One Player May Mean in a World Series.

Sport Shots

By PAUL W. LARKIN

Forgets His Own

A Dallas sport scribe in an article to a well known sport publication writes, "Dallas is still pulling for the St. Louis Browns to come through in the American league. The fans here can make the trip to St. Louis much easier than they can to New York, and that isn't all—they're against 'pennant buying,' and against it hard." That sounds amusing coming from Dallas. They didn't buy a pennant when they took Rader, Demaggio and Love from Beaumont. It wasn't their fault, however. The Cats simply were too strong as were the Shufflers for that matter. In fact they didn't even buy the men. They did what was worse—purchased them optionally. In other words if they had led the Giants to a pennant they would undoubtedly have bought them permanently. They didn't so at least one and probably two will be turned back to the Exporters. The scribe must have overlooked that.

A Lengthy Series

The world series was trimmed from nine to seven games this season. Imagine 10 out of 15 games to decide the champion of the world. That's what happened in 1887 when Detroit of the American league clashed with the Browns of the old American association. Detroit won 10 games to five. In that series Detroit had a majority after the third game and continued to enlarge it but for some unknown reason they kept on playing. St. Louis won the opener and Detroit took the next three. The Browns then took another and Detroit came back with four more in a row. It continued in that matter until Detroit won 10 out of 15.

St. Louis Won Title Once

Though not mathematically out yet, the Browns are in a bad one and St. Louis has lost her opportunity to have her first championship since 1886, when the Browns beat four out of six from Cap Anson's famous Chicago Cubs. Prior to that series the Browns had tied the Cubs three games to three. One game was tied and not played off, presumably because the business managers were not as smart in those days as they are now. The championship outfit of 1886 boasted of such stars as Robinson at second, Latham at third, Glenalvin shortstop, Welch, Foutz and O'Neill outfielders, Hushong, catcher, and Carruthers and Hudson pitchers. Only two hurlers were used in the six game series.

A Live Sport Town

Burkburnett may not be the largest community in Texas, but per capita it is one of livest sporting towns in all a section of the country. A city tennis tournament has been in progress there this week, the high school football team has been working out, the city semi-pro eleven has been practicing and the Magnolia baseball team one of the fastest semi-pro outfits in this section of the country, has been warming up daily to keep in condition for the last couple of games of the season. On top of that, boxing bouts have been held there regularly the past summer. A sport fan has plenty of places to go there.

May Challenge Wichita Falls

Burk net enthusiasts are not averse to staging a tennis title tilt between the winners of their tournament and the winners of the local tournament. Secretary Spence of the Burk chamber of commerce stated Thursday that he would make an effort to bring such a tournament about.

A Question

Because Fate was taken out of the box in Friday's game with Mobile and the fact that the Panthers last has given rise to the old talk that Pate cannot win except in Panther park. It seems strange that the big southpaw isn't as effective on the road as he is at home, but it's a fact nevertheless. Does he cheat? Of course he and his mates deny it. Umpires likewise deny it. Opposing players, on the other hand, claim he does. He is accused of doing all sorts of things with the agate. Some claim he roughs it, some assert he shines one side and one Wichita Falls pitcher who knows about all there is to know concerning "trick" balls declares he loads the seams with mud. Be that as it may there are times when Joe can make that apple jump through a hoop and then again there are times when he can't do anything with it. It's a free country and you are entitled to your own opinion.

Fate vs. Danforth

Should the Cats win the Dixie series and it is likely they will, there ought to be a great battle when Fate and Danforth hook up—if they do. It will keep the umpires on the job watching the balls. It will be a case of when Greek meets Greek.

AMERICAN SWIMMER HALF WAY ACROSS CHANNEL

By Associated Press.

DOVER, ENG., Sept. 23.—Charles Toth, long distance swimmer of Boston, started from a point midway between Dover and Folkstone at 8:45 o'clock last night in another attempt to swim the English channel. The captain of a steamer from Calais upon his arrival this morning reported sighting Toth accompanied by a launch, a little more than half way across the channel apparently making fair progress.

On his last attempt on August 2 Toth was forced to quit when only four miles from his goal.

"ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING" IN MINDS OF NEW YORK FANS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Take it from New York's baseball fandom, the major league pennant races are "all over but the shouting."

Mathematically speaking, the St. Louis Browns in the American and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National have a chance to overhaul their Gotham rivals, but it's a slim chance.

The Giants, with ten more games to play, were leading by four and a half games today as a result of defeating Pittsburgh, 8 to 7, in a sensational hand to hand grapple upon which the last tangible hopes of the Pirates rested. The Yankees, with six games yet to play, downed Cleveland 9 to 3, for their fifth straight victory and kept a lead of three and a half games over the Browns, who defeated Philadelphia, 11 to 5.

The New York clubs need win but half their games—the Giants five and the Yanks three—to retain their championship titles, even if the Pirates win all seven of their contests and the Browns are victorious in their five.

Another for Langford.

JUAREZ, MEXICO, Sept. 23.—Sam Langford of Boston knocked out Battling Owens of New Orleans in the seventh round of a 15-round bout here last night. The men are negro heavyweights.

"FOOL'S CIRCUS" WILL BE DR. H. D. KNICKERBOCKER'S SUBJECT SUNDAY NIGHT

"There have been all kinds of circuses," said Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First Methodist church, south corner Tenth and Lamar, to a Times reporter. "Once in London I was nonplussed to have them tell me that a location was in the Pendik's circus. I found they meant a circle, a kind of open place. Life's a circus, sometimes it's a fool's circus. We are going to use the subject 'Fool's Circus' Sunday night as this is circus week. There will be three rings to the subject. In one ring, the most mysterious performance on earth will be enacted. In another the most beautiful fairy in all the world will spout in the moonlight and in the third a squeaking singing creature will fly on wings like an archangel. We guarantee there won't be a dull moment during the whole performance.

"At 10:30 a. m. we will do our best to make room for a few permanents, but the will have to come early to get in as we are expecting over a thousand of our members to gather for a great membership rally. Fourteen teams are working in the contest for some magnificent solid gold watches and the contest waxes warm and exciting and interesting. Each attendance Sunday will count five points. The subject of my sermon will be 'Old Ways and New Ways to Be Happy.'"

CAN YOU DO IT?

If you are face-to-face with a task that seems impossible, consider this:

In 1827 the Boston Courier said editorially, "The project of a railroad from Boston to Albany is impracticable, as every one knows who knows the simplest rule of arithmetic, and the expense would be little less than the market value of the whole territory of Massachusetts; and which, if practicable, every person of common sense knows would be as useless as a railroad from Boston to the moon."

Nevertheless, "crazy visionaries" went ahead and laid a network of railroads. Having imagination, they clairvoyantly seneed the future in store for New York and other states.

Men of the sort of those early railroad builders are the forces which drive humanity steadily along the road of progress. They prove that virtually nothing is impossible.

When the elevated railroad was first suggested, even Old Man Vanderbilt roared with laughter. "Impossible!" he declared. "Whoever board of a railroad on stilts?"

Nevertheless, the gentlemen who refused to admit that anything might be possible went ahead with their plans. They built the elevateds Wonder what Vanderbilt would have said about a proposal to bury tracks, trains and passengers in subways?

The history of human failure is a never-ending serial story, each installment a repetition of "It's impossible" and "I can't do it."

The history of success is a much smaller volume. But it also is a never-ending serial story, with the characters muttering firmly, "Nothing is impossible" and "I'll do it or die in the attempt"

All powers and talents of man, all natural wealth of the earth, are merely fingers on the hand known as Human Will Power.

Without a never-lagging will power nothing can carry you through to success With will power you can attain what you want, even if some of the fingers of human ability and wealth are lacking.

Will power cannot be developed, for it lies dormant in every person's character. What we call development of will power is merely the bringing to life of a sleeping giant.

That giant, if not already roused, can be wakened in you in the twinkling of an eye.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF RATES WILL ADD TO HARDING WORK

MANUFACTURERS EXPECTED TO BOMBARD WHITE HOUSE FOR CHANGES.

RATES NOT FINAL BUT SUBJECT TO REVISION

Right to Make Alterations Urged By Republicans As Advantage in Campaigns.

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times.

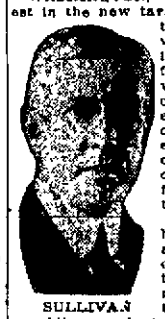
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Interest in the new tariff bill centers in the various provisions for changing the rates from time to time without the action of congress. In every discussion of the probable effect of the bill on business and on politics this feature is brought to the front



SULLIVAN

It is the flexibility of the bill and on the power of the president to change the rates from time to time that the republicans rely to meet criticism. They believe they are in a position to say in answer to any attack made by the democrats on any rate that this rate is not final but is subject to revision by the president at any time. But aside from argument about any specific rate many thoughtful persons including both democrats and republicans find cause for grave concern in this flexibility feature and in the way it is to be administered. They put forward two objections

One objection is that the flexibility feature affords room for the pressure of politics and for yielding to special interests to a greater extent than did the fixed rates which have characterized all previous tariff bills The second objection has to do with the added burden put upon whoever holds the office of president. They foresee that in the actual working out of the bill any manufacturer or any person affected by the tariff who thinks he could make more money if the rates were changed or who thinks his business is endangered by foreign competition will at once appeal to his state senator or local congressman The latter will bring it to Washington and ask for an interview with the president A request for an interview made under such circumstances is not easy to refuse Thereupon there will be put upon the president in addition to his already too numerous burdens the work of listening to a discussion of the infinite complexities involved in any tariff rate whatever If the president is disposed to conserve his time and vitality he can reply merely that he will turn the matter over to the tariff board for decision and that whatever the tariff board recommends he will do

Will Bombard President

But any one familiar with the way such things go knows that the parties interested will continue to bombard the president with requests for a personal hearing and a review and any man in the White House would find it difficult to avoid the infinitely burdensome business of focusing his mind on question of tariff rates in hundreds of involved and technical fields

During the debates on this feature of the tariff bill a republican senator remarked in a private conversation 'this provision is going to be adopted but after it is in I shall never want to be president'

The menace of this addition to the claims on the president's time and attention will be realized by the many thoughtful persons who feel that already the immense number of involved questions put up to the president as a part of his daily work is beyond the capacity of any one human being Any intelligent effort intended to make the government at Washington more efficient would concern itself with subtracting from the number of things the president must do rather than adding to them In matters of the weightiest statesmanship calling for the strongest and most delicate judgment the difference is great between a decision made by a rested man and that made by a tired one.

When the Brain Is Tired

The influence on the course of events caused by the fact that decisions are sometimes made by men whose brains are tired is not often taken into account by the general public but is well understood by observers close to the events. An Englishman commenting on the state of Lord Northcliffe's health during his closing year said

"No one can read his story with penetrating intelligence who does not reckon with the influence of personal health on public events Instance Chatham's gout and Napoleon's obscure malady. The one lost America, the other Waterloo"

To go back no more than a very short time there need be little doubt that on some vital points the peace conference at Paris would have taken a different direction if it had not been that all of the principal characters who took part in it had already been worn out intellectually by their burdens in carrying on the war This is more generally realized in the case of Mr Wilson than in the case of the others But in one degree or another it applied to all of them

Mr Wilson's break-down in health did not reach the point where it was obvious to the world until some months after the peace conference ended But the later historian who will study the peace conference minutely will realize that Mr Wilson had come to be a little below his best in vigor some weeks before the peace conference began. If the Wilson of 1919 had been the Wilson of 1918 a good deal of that yielding to what was called by one of Lloyd George's official British associates 'the bamboozlement of Wilson by Lloyd George' would not have happened. Any experienced observed has seen cases where imporatnt decisions in statesmanship were influenced adversely by the fact that men in high places are just as subject to fatigue as the average man is There are few occasions for thoughtful concern so great as that calling for the need for some check on that centralization of government which constantly piles higher and heavier burdens on one man Of the last three presidents of the United States, one in the person of the extraordinary rugged Roosevelt died at the age of 61, and another at the age of 63 was so stricken as to cause his retirement from public affairs Of the last six wives of presidents four have been in one degree or another victims of the constantly increasing pressure of affairs upon the White House.

What is said here has no application happily to President Harding. In spite of the fact that he has had no real vacation since he assumed the presidency and in spite of the enormous weight of the recent claims on his attention, Mr Harding retains such a measure of health and calm that it is a subject of comment. But the broad fact still remains that it is greatly desirable to struggle against the tendency toward centralization which tends constantly to pile additional duties on one human being Many of the persons who in the past have advocated the flexible tariff and have seen obvious advantages in it did not have in mind this particular kind of flexible tariff What they had in mind was a device which should eliminate the president entirely. They had in mind a tariff board which should have no other duties than this, and whose decisions should be final Their conception now dismissed has been a tariff board which should have the same duties and powers about customs duties as the federal reserve board has about rates of interest and which should be as free from political pressure as the federal reserve board is

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a friend indeed.'"—Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1048 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
The State of Texas to the sheriff or any constable of Wichita county, Greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon J. B. Donoho by making publication of this citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 89th judicial district; but if there be no newspaper published in said judicial district then in a newspaper published in the nearest district to said 89th judicial district, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof, in Wichita Falls, Texas, on the first Monday in October A. D. 1922, the same being the 2nd day of October A. D. 1922, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 31st day of August A. D. 1922 in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 13582-C wherein Ed Woodall is plaintiff and J. B. Donoho is defendant, and said petition alleging: That the plaintiff is now and was on or about the 18th of March, 1920, the owner of the fee simple title to the following described tracts of land situated in Wichita county, Texas, to-wit: Lots Nos 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 38, 39, 27, 28, 29, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50 and 51 of the Ed Woodall partial subdivision of abstracts Nos 523, 367, 426, 83, 580 and 208 of Wichita county, Texas, and containing 400 acres of land, more or less. Plaintiff further says that on the 18th of March, 1920, he made, executed and delivered a certain oil, gas and mineral lease covering the above described land to the defendant J. B. Donoho and one Sam B. Rayzor, which said oil, gas and mineral lease was filed in the office of the county clerk of Wichita county, Texas, on the 1st day of February, 1920, and is of record in said office in volume 167 page 170, that by terms of said lease it was provided that the lessees therein should within a given time drill certain oil wells upon said land and develop the same for oil and gas, or if they failed to do so, should pay to the plaintiff certain rentals therein stipulated. Plaintiff alleges that the said lessees in said lease have wholly failed to comply with the terms and provisions thereof and have abandoned said lease and have forfeited all rights thereunder; that the said Sam B. Rayzor has acknowledged the abandonment of said lease and has executed to the plaintiff a release of same, but that the defendant J. B. Donoho has failed to execute to the plaintiff a release of said lease, and the same constitutes a cloud upon plaintiff's title to said land herein described. Wherefore plaintiff prays that said defendant be cited to appear and answer herein and that upon a final hearing hereof, plaintiff have judgment against said defendant for the title and possession of said land, for the cancellation of said lease and for the removal of the cloud upon the plaintiff's title, and for such other and further relief as he may be entitled, general and special, legal and equitable. Herein fail not but have before said court at its aforesaid regular term this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same. Given under my hand and the seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, on the 1st day of September A. D. 1922. A. F. Kerr, Clerk district court, Wichita county, Texas. By Florence Jackson, Deputy. (Seal)

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
The State of Texas to the sheriff or any constable of Wichita county, Greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon Robert Windle by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof, in Wichita Falls, Texas, on the first Monday in October A. D. 1922, the same being the 2nd day of October A. D. 1922, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 5th day of September A. D. 1922 in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 133806 wherein Mrs Eva Windle is plaintiff and Robert Windle is defendant and said petition alleging: State of Texas, county of Wichita; in the 89th district court of Wichita county, Texas, October term A. D. 1922. To the Hon. R. A. Jones, judge of said court: Now comes Mrs Eva Windle, who will hereinafter be styled plaintiff, complaining of Robert Windle, who will hereinafter be styled defendant, and plaintiff shows to the court that she has been a bona fide inhabitant of the state of Texas for a period of more than one year and a resident of Wichita county, Texas, for a period of more than six months next preceding the filing of this petition, and that the defendant the last plaintiff knew of him was residing somewhere in the state of Georgia, and for cause of action plaintiff alleges as follows: 1. That plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married in Tulsa, Oklahoma, on the 10th day of April A. D. 1920, and lived together as man and wife until about the 10th day of June A. D. 1921, at which time plaintiff separated from defendant and has not since said time lived with defendant as his wife. 2. That plaintiff separated from defendant for the reason that defendant was guilty of infidelity towards her and of other acts of cruelty that rendered their further living together as man and wife insupportable. That plaintiff tried in all things to do her duty as a wife, but that she was forced to separate from defendant upon the day and date above set forth. Wherefore plaintiff asks for a divorce from defendant upon the grounds of cruel treatment. Wherefore premises considered, plaintiff prays that citation issue in terms of law citing defendant to appear at the next regular term of this court and answer this petition, and that upon final hearing she have a decree of this court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore existing between the plaintiff and defendant, and for such other and further relief, special and general, in law and in equity that she may justly be entitled to, and for costs of suit. Herein fail not, but have before said court at its aforesaid next regular term this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same. Given under my hand and seal of said court at office in the city of Wichita Falls, in the county of Wichita, this 5th day of September A. D. 1922. A. F. Kerr, Clerk district court, Wichita county, Texas. By Effie Holland, Deputy. (Seal)

NOTICE is hereby given that partnership composed of Pastusek and Edwards, known as Favorite Grocery and Market at 800½ Tenth-st., Wichita Falls, Texas, has this day been dissolved and that J. M. MARKETS

COTTON MARKET

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 8 to 18 points owing to a more optimistic feeling over the political situation abroad and bullish week-end reviews of the goods trade. There was further southern selling but it was very readily absorbed. Wall street buying sent the price of December up to 21.41 or 24 points net higher. Traders found nothing in the weather news to attract special comment but there was probably some buying on reports that general business throughout the country was increasing.

The advance extended to 21.48 for December later in the morning with active months showing net advances of 25 to 30 points on continued covering and trade buying. There was realizing enough to cause slight reactions but the close was very steady at a net advance of 14 to 28 points.

Cotton closed very steady.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—A firm tone developed in the cotton market on the opening today, the improvement in the foreign situation causing a general buying movement. A crop estimate of 9,705,000 bales for the whole belt, accompanied by an estimate of 3,000,000 bales for Texas and the claim that the crop of that state is more than half picked and sold, attracted much attention. At the end of the first hour of business prices were 31 to 37 points higher than the final hour of yesterday. October advanced to 20.78.

After the first upturn, the market ran into considerable week end realizing from the long side and reactions from the highest of about 10 points resulted. In the late trading there was another rally, the close showing net gains on the day of 23 to 28 points, October standing at 20.70. Some of this late buying appeared to be due to expectations of low private bureau condition reports early next week.

Cotton closed steady at a net advance of 23 to 28 points.

CHAPTER XV

The Vampire and the Jewels

Lanyard left Athenus at her apartment and immediately followed her directions to the house of Liane

It stood four square and massive on a corner between the avenues de Friederland et des Champs-Elysees a solid stone pile of a town-house in the most modern mode.

Heavy gates of wrought bronze guarded the front doors. The single side or service door was similiarly protected if more simply. And stout grilles of bronze barred every window o the level of the street.

Tomorrow night would be too late Tonight, if there were any warrant for his suspicions, the jewels of Tve de Montalais lay in the dwelling of Liane Delorme, or if they were not there, the secret of their hiding was

But tomorrow Liane would be on the wing, or Lanyard had been sorely mistaken in seeing in her as badly frightened a woman as he had ever known, when she had blanned of the assassination of de Lorgnes

He must adventure the consequences . .

Poised to leave his shelter with his point of attack selected, he checked and fell back into the shadow Something was happening in the house across the way.

A man had opened the service-door and paused behind the bronz gate.

Following a little wait, it swung slowly out, perhaps eighteen inches, the man advancing with it and again halting to peer up and down the street. Then quickly, as if alarmed, he withdrew

Listening intently, Lanyard heard no click of latch, such as should have been audible in that dead hour of hush. Evidently the fellow had neglected to make fast the gate What was he up to" Why this furtive appearance, why the retreat so abruptly executed"

By way of answer came the soft drone of a high-powered motor

Before the corner house it stopped A lackey alighted with an umbrella but Liane Delorme would not wait for him The car had not stopped when she threw the door open, on the instant when its wheels ceased to turn she jumped down and ran into the house.

Now if only it were true that the man at the service-door had failed to close it securely—'

It proved so The gate gave readily to Lanyard's pull The knob of the small door turned silently. He stepped across the theshold, and shut himself into the unlighted hall

To one side a broad flight of stairs ascended Lanyard went up with the activity of a cat, making no more noise.

The second floor proved to be devoted mainly to a drawing room, a lounge and a library all furnished in a weird, inchoate sotr of magnificence, with money rather than with taste, if one might judge fairly by the fitful and guarded beam of the torch.

Lights were burning on the floor above, and a rumor of feminine voices drifted down interrupted by an occasional sibilant rustle of silk or a brief patter of high-heeled feet noises which bore out the conjecture that mudame's maid was undressing and putting her to bed.

A change in the tenor of the talk between mistress and maid was conveyed by a sudden lift of a half an octave in the latter's voce, sounding a sharp note of protest to be answered by Liane in accent of overbearing anger.

One simply could not rest without knowing what that meant' Lanyard mounted the second flight of stairs as swiftly, surely, and soundlessly as he had the first. Just below a landing he paused, crouching low, his head lifted just enough to permit him to see a section of glowing rose-pink wall—it would be rose pink'

He could see nothing more? and Liane had already reduced the maid to responses feebly submissive

"And why should you not go with me to that America if I wish it'" Lanyard heard her say "Is it likely I would leave you behind to spread scandal concerning me with that gabbing tongue in your head?"

"It is well, madame. I say no more I will go '

"Fetch my jewels case—the large one"

Madame takes all her jewels then'" the maid inquired moving about the room

But naturally I shall pack them tonight before I sleep '

(Damnation '—from Lanyard, beneath his breath More delay'')

"And we leave tomorrow, madame, at what time?"

"It matters not, so we are in Cherbrough by midnight"

Lanyard slipped like a shadow to the floor below, and took shelter behind a jog in the wall.

The maid came down, carrying an electric candle Its rays illumined from below one of those faces of crude comeliness She hesitated, looking up toward the room of her mistress, as if feat in thought.

But some secret thought amused the woman, a shadow deepened in the visible corner of her full-lipped mouth. One fancied something sardonic in that covert smile.

She went on down Lanyard came out of hiding with a fresh enterprise abrew.

Liane would be at least another half an hour busy with her jewelry, and the thought presented itself that the library, immediately beneath her room, should be worthy an investigation

The library was furnished with bulky old Italian pieces of carved oak, but suitable enough with one exception a ponderous buffet completely out of place in a room of that character.

Her eyes bulging from their sockets.

But—this drew a frowning stare—there was a key in the lock of the middle door.

"There's such a thing as too much luck" Lanyard communed. "First the service gate and door, and now this, ready to my hand—''

He swung sharply round and searched every shadow in the room with the glare of the portable lamp

Placing the lamp on the floor and adjusting its hood so that it focused squarely upon the middle section of the buffet, he turned the key and discovered, behind the door, a small safe

The combination dial was smug with ill-grounded confidence in its own inviolate integrity Still (Lanyard told it) it could hardly be expected to know, it had yet to be dealt with by the shade of the Lone Wolf.

Amused by the conceit, Lanyard laid hold on the knob with steady, delicate fingertips that had not yet, in spite of years of honorable idleness, forgotten their cunning The dial, whirled, paused, reversed turned all but imperceptibly In three minutes he sat back on his heels, grasping the T-Handle, turned it, find the satisfaction of hearing the bolts slide back into their sockets, and opened the door wide

Put the racked pigeonholes held nothing to interest him whose one aim was the recovery of the Montalais jewels The safe was, in fact dedicated simply to the storage of documents

"Love letters'" Lanyard mused with a grimace of weariness "And each believed no doubt, she cared too much to compromise him Good Lord' what vanity is man a''

He selected a pigeonhole at hazard and emptied it of several bundles of letters, all neatly bound with tape or faded ribbon and clearly docketed His eye was caught by a great name endorsed on the face of one of the packages, and reading what else was written there his brows rose high while his lips shaped a soundless whistle Liane had kept such documents as gave her power over others Lanyard wondered if it were possible he held in his hand an instrument to hand the women to his will

Suddenly he put out a hand and switched off the light a gesture quite involuntary simple reaction of the muffled thump of a chair overturned on the floor above

Sounds of scuffling followed as if Liane were dancing to no music with a heavy footed partner Then a groan . .

His hands moved so rapidly and deftly that although he seemed to rise without a second's delay the safe was closed and the combination locked when he did so, the buffet door was shut and its key in his pocket.

This time Lanyard ascended the stairs without heeding what noise he made Nevertheless his actions were never awkward or ill-timed, his approach was not heard, his arrival on the upper landing was unnoticed.

In an instantaneous pause he looked into the rose-pink room and saw Liane Delorme, in a negligee like a cobweb over a nightdress even more sheer, kneeling and clawing at her throat, round which a heavy silk handkerchief was slowly tightening, her face already purple with strangulation, her eyes bulging from their sockets her tongue protruding between swollen lips

A thick knee was planted between her shoulder-blades The ends of the handkerchief were in the sinewy hands of Albert Dupont

CIRCUS HAS MOST DARING TAMER AND TRAINER OF JUNGLE BEASTS

Mabel Stark, one of the 10 lady trainers with the mammoth Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey circus, coming here next Tuesday

The biggest, blackest cat ever seen outside a Freudian dream is coming to town in a few days. His name is Nigger and he is the untamable 300-pound black panther who lends a twice-a-minute thrill to one of the many sensational wild animal acts presented on the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey circus program

Mabel Stark, most daring tamer and trainer of jungle beasts regards this dusky 'pussy cat as her pet

"I love the black one best' says she. "My ten tigers are splendid animals but are less interesting because I usually know what to expect of them But Nigger is a constant enigma Oddly enough his character changes with the weather On bright days when the sky is blue he is as docile as a kitten But let clouds come and he is so fierce that, though the audiences do not always realize it, I am often obliged to fight for my very life '

If the audiences do not always know that it is because Miss Stark does not wage a battle of blows with her unruly subjects Instead she out generals them To see this mere wisp of a girl skip dodge and dance into the very teeth of claws and fangs is to witness something far more thrilling than the 'big moment' in the mellowest of melodramas There are almost a hundred trained animals presented by the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey show this season These number entire troupes of lions, polar bears leopards and jaguars but none furnish the breathless situations that fill the 10 minutes during which petite Mabel Stark who weighs a mere 100 pounds ascends it over her company of tigers and that 'circus of light' called Nigger All will be exhibited as part of three hours of entirely new arenic features when the big double circus comes here next Tuesday to exhibit afternoon and night

SIGNIFICANCE OF JEWISH NEW YEAR CELEBRATION SATURDAY IS DESCRIBED

On Saturday the Jewish people of America in common with their brethren all over the world will foregather in their respective synagogs to observe according to the traditions of their fathers, a solemn holiday, Rosh Hashanah namely New Year. Among orthodox Jews a second day of New Year is also observed

The Jewish New Year must not be confounded with the secular new year since it is not a day to mark time but to record spiritual experiences. Its Biblical basis is found in Leviticus 23 24; "In the seventh month (which refers to the Hebrew calendar) on the first day of the month shall be a solemn rest unto you, a memorial proclaimed with blasts of horns, a holy convocation."

In common with many Jewish holidays and ceremonials Rosh Hashanah has undergone a transformation that has given it a significance not shared today by the celebrations usually accorded the secular new year. At that time, amid feasting and hilarity, a new year is hailed and the old year rung out. The new year of the synagog celebrates a solemn occasion to take judgment of one's self and obtain direction for guidance. More than all it is viewed as a day of judgment and so regarded in order that men and women surveying the achievements of the year and their own particular conduct may obtain sufficient incentive to amend their ways, and in a repentant mood project their souls along higher planes and to loftier altitudes.

The day of judgment is thus set by the religion of the Jew in life and not after man's departure from this mortal world. The day, given him by tradition to pass in review his deeds as recorded on the tablets of his soul, serves as a means of passing judgment on himself Aware of his own failures and shortcomings he is in a mood to repent and to live and serve in larger measure and ampler ways.

The sounding of the Shofar, or trumpet, is associated in the minds of the worshippers with the thought of calling them to repent of their sins and improve their ways during the new year

According to Jewish legend, New Year marks the anniversary of the creation of the world Following that legend this new year will be the 5683rd year since the world was created. Of greater importance is the interpretation put upon this legend by the rabbis to whom it becomes the anniversary of the birth of man. All mankind is thus endowed with a common birthright and hence the peculiar solicitude of Judaism for mankind is stressed on this day.

Among orthodox Jews elaborate preparations have been made for this holiday and that of the Day of Atonement which falls due ten days later During the four weeks previous, penitential prayers are recited and this ceremony continues until the eve of Yom Kippur

The Jewish people of America avail themselves of the privilege of exchanging greetings between friends and relatives on this day, and of strengthening the bonds of devotion in the household and making it a sanctuary worthy of American Jews.
